

Surgical Innovations (SI), the designer and manufacturer of creative solutions for minimally invasive surgery ('MIS'), has announced that it has received funding approval with its long standing industrial partner worth over £210,000. The funding will be used to develop a bespoke solution for a device delivery system to be used in the on-wing inspection of jet engines.

This exciting opportunity for SI has been covered by a number of well-known local and national publications. The Yorkshire Post reads "Keyhole surgery on wing ready for take-off", a detailed article written by Ros Snowden, the City Editor of the paper including quotes from an interview with CEO Graham Bowland. SI has also been mentioned in the Daily Express as part of their "Small Companies Roundup" article. Other press coverage includes publications such as the UK-Analyst, the Business Desk, WatsHot and the Insider Media Limited.
